Anniversary of the Battle of Hastings

INTERESTING SKETCH OF THE GROWTH OF ENGLISH INSTITUTIONS

[From the London Times, Oct 26th.]

A few days ago England might have celebrated with very good reasons the eighth centenary of an event which may be fairly regarded as the foundation of this realm, and no small part of our making as the British people The battle of Hastings was fought on October 14, 1066 and on that day the conqueror became the possessor of the sovereignty still enjoyed by his descendants with ever increased glory and security It was one of the very few occasions in the history of the world in which accidents, and trifles, and secondary causes seem to have had no part and in which the authors, the preparation, the circumstances, and the expectation of all were suitable to the incalculable importance of the results The "great Baron" led to these shores the noblest and most civilized race of this age He carefully armed himself with the highest religious sanction, and a claim sufficient at least for the wager of battle Politic before his age he threw away no chance With the eyes of all Christendom upon him he made the most elaborate preparations on the opposite shore, and secured by diplomacy an important diversion on our northern coast It was greatly in his favor that he had not to encounter a thoroughly united realm, an ancient and proud dynasty, a people proud of their unmixed race, or a dominant class; for in all these respects England was made to his hands, and like a house waiting for its lord and master Indeed, with the exception of the governing power which England was then to receive and to be speedily developed into King, Lords and Commons it had a remarkable resemblance to the England of this day It had been made up of many races, successively engrafted on a stock of unknown antiquity Its people had always claimed self government and equal laws The tribal system and slavery—if pure and simple slavery had ever existed in the island—had early given way to the allodial system, and to that relation of master and man which is become almost nature in this country England would have been a very barren conquest had the conqueror not won the people as well as the soil, and, although he brought over then and afterward many thousand adventurers, whom he was able to plant all over the country all inquiry tends to prove how small, in the first instance, was the change in the inhabitants of this island, their manners and their laws At first the two races lived apart, then the lordly Norman element began to work like a leaven in the mixed mass of the people, as it has worked ever since, and works at this day Though there was not a family in the land that could claim a pure descent and it so foolish an ambition, yet Norman blood flows in the meanest veins, producing everywhere and in various classes the germs of mastery, of organization, of handiness and helpfulness, of high moral principle, of loyal obedience and paternal authority

During the eight centuries we have undergone changes so great, and seen events so extraordinary as to invite the remark that our history is the tale of a novel writer But in the most important sense we have been singularly changeless For the whole of this period we have been engaged more or less in political controversies assuming various forms, but almost invariably recognizing the dynasty, the Constitution, the church, the right of property, the legal system, local authority and even territorial arrangements of a less important character Of these two things it is hard to say which is the oldest and most respected in this country, and no sooner is any part of our complex social and political system threatened than the descendant may be of baron or British patriots, can point to a chapter and verse of Norman records, with the presumption in favor of a much greater antiquity The Conquest, which found England in no very peaceful and settled condition had to plant its steps in the smoldering embers, and encounter and quench not a few rebellions. Then came wars of succession, an evil old as the Heptarchy but also imported, and culminating in the battle of Bosworth, near four centuries ago, since which we have managed this business better The Normans brought with them some ecclesiastical controversies which are still pending, and which have occasionally influenced political affairs We have claimed a national Church, and one which tolerates dissent—a return, as some tell us, to British simplicity, but less doubtfully fortified by Norman example Profiting by the example of the Northern Barons, the Commons claimed their place in legislation and laws The land was covered with castles, but burgesses grew bold, and when castles were leveled wholesale, there were more and more Royal Charters with still larger liberties The genius of the country was adverse to all political pretensions of an unaccommodating and overbearing character The great Norman families that felt and acted as heirs of the Conquest and masters of the people, gradually decayed, giving place to a gentry of more moderate bearing The Wars of the Roses and the iron rule of the Tudors are commonly said to have given the finishing stroke to the confederacy of Norman chiefs that all thought England their own But what record that stormy period left of itself fared ill at the hands of succeeding generations, and we only know what survived Thus gradually, and after many struggles, the conquerors themselves, the Crown, the Barons and the Church, have had to enter into compromises with the people, and accept laws made in the interest of the whole Commonwealth for six centuries Parliament and the Courts of law are substantially what they are now

When we are speaking of that which has grown, and gained, and lost, and remained the same for eight centuries, we have no choice but to call it England. England in Norman hands acquired Ireland and Wales, were after stages of the contest She lost her continental provinces, and with them the last links of Norman fetters, for the Norman element from that day was a social rather than a political influence As soon as the dream of French dominion had passed away, England found a good sister, instead of a bad neighbor in the northern part of the island Since that she has lost the best part of North America, her own children, and gained India and Australia They are the largest losses and gains that history tells of, and the superstructure may seem too large for the basis of a single battle fought on the Sussex Downs eight hundred years ago But that was not the scale by which causes and effects were measured by the Saxon Thanes who, having watched the Normans disembarking on Michaelmas Eve, in the year 1066, and then encamping and hutting themselves rode beyond the Humber to tell King Harold, Godwin's son, what they had seen They found him resting at York, after having slain his namesake, the Norwegian King The Saxon King was no craven He rode from York to Sussex, gathered a second army and met the Normans at the hoary apple-tree—a "sour apple tree" for him There he fell, and thousands of his army with him, as the gigantic King of Norway and his huge host had fallen a few days before Within fifteen days both the Harolds had got their seven feet of English earth That was the masterstroke of the Norman Duke Indeed, all that we have done, and the whole series of our conquests and acquisitions, far and wide, are but echoes of the Norman original The wandering Celt the hard working Saxon, the adventurous Dane, whatever the peculiar and insensible qualities of that English race into which all are fused might have planned no labored and fought in vain but for the master Norman mind that could plan and construct and inspire, that never intended without doing, that said it and did without succeeding, and that never began without completing its work

That the succeeding chapters of so changeful a history should not be lacking in interest and the problem of British greatness is still working itself out is both a natural and a necessary faith It cannot be said that we have attained to any consummation or even any resting place or any side so satisfactory that we may now thank the Conquest for putting the finishing stroke on our completion but they who would ameliorate our public policy, or remodel our institutions, will never do it well if at all unless they fully recognize the character of the materials they have to deal with The elements of our race are indestructible, even though at the time mixed character proved by history and the evidence of our own senses We see that we have been made by successive invasions, successive occupations and successive additions from various parts of the continent. The refugees of poverty or religious persecutions to whom we have given a home must outnumber many times the entire Norman importation But it is plain to the bluntest senses and the dullest understanding, that the men who conquered, held, governed and built up this country till they were one with it and were lost in a nomination unity are still among us and in us in our institutions our laws our language, our customs our public spirit our policy our very flesh and blood These are the actual ingredients and these the facts of the case that we have to deal with, and all legislation that should ever attempt to mould and fashion our race without caring what it is and what it is made of will utterly and disastrously fail Nations have their characters like individuals and we have ours, though, as in the case of most men, it is various It is painfully evident that our cousins across the Atlantic inherit this variety, and that no success is to be expected from the attempt to make one quality, one class, one type of men the normal citizen and ordinary unit in that society What we see there is the violent antagonism of numbers, strong chiefly in the weakness with which they allow themselves to be massed and moulded against a minority with stronger hereditary qualities. These are given to be helpmates for one another, not for the triumph of one, or for mutual destruction But the greatest of all losses a nation can suffer is the loss or the degradation of those whose very appearance and manner mark them for mastery and headship and whom instinct, education and position all combine to qualify for responsibility and command

But it is not at all necessary that we should suppose England still divided into Norman, Saxon, Dane or Briton The truth is, the medley is complete, that the type of each race may come out anywhere, and each one of us may be all It is enough that the qualities are in us, and the traditional parts remain to be filled In no country in the world is the relation of master and servant so firmly established, so thoroughly developed, and conducive to such great and happy results as in this country No doubt it is the creation of our history Ireland has never passed through the feudal system, for, though it had its Norman conqueror, it had not gone through the previous training and formation which made the Norman Conquest so beneficial to this country The result is that the Irishman will be at once master and servant, landlord, tenant and laborer, his own lawmaker his own minister of justice—indeed, everything in one That he may be a faithful servant when his nature inclined that way, none can doubt, but his will generally inclines to that personal independence which crumbles society into units, and ends in social dissolution When he does find his master it is on the roll among the race conquered by and finally associated with the Norman But if we say that the English master and servant are the best of our race, as it now exists, and if we seem to read its origin in the successive conquests of this island always by a race superior to the last, we are only asserting what is evident in the framework of English society, in the qualities that fit people for one or both of these positions To be a good master, it is often said, a man must be a good servant, or have been one, and to be a good Englishman a man must be at once Celt, Saxon, Dane, Norman, and whatever else has contributed to form the British character

N P. WILLIS.—A New York letter contains the following in regard to Willis, the poet

Until lately, there frequently appeared on Nassau and Fulton streets, in the vicinity of the print office, a venerable man with gray locks and whitened beard under the chin His step was tottering and he walked slowly, but one would always observe about him a certain air of dandyism. He always wore gloves, and his clothes were scrupulously in fashion It was N P Willis, the poet, now upwards of seventy years of age. Forty years ago he was, in common with Irving, Paulding, Morris, Leggett and others, one of the young men of literary promise in this city New York did not extend much beyond Canal street, the Park theater, opposite the City Hall, was the nightly rendezvous of the town wits, the fashionable part of Broadway was at the corner of Cortlandt street, and the fine gentlemen and ladies made their afternoon promenades on the battery. Willis, George P Morris and Theodore S Fay (afterward our Minister to Berlin,) edited a lively literary sheet, the Weekly Mirror. Willis was in the hight of his reputation as a poet then, and his partner, (Morris,) had just made himself famous with "Woodman, Spare that Tree." Morris died about two years ago, still a partner with his old friend in the Home Journal Willis, it is said, is now passing away He has not appeared in the city for some weeks, but has been confined to his residence on the Hudson, by his feeble health With the exception perhaps of Simms, of South Carolina, he is the last representative of the second generation of American authors.

A MODEST "NO CARDS" WEDDING.—A correspondent of a Western paper tells about a wedding that recently came under his observation in Sodus (N Y), which for simplicity and economy fairly "knocks the spots" from anything of the sort we ever heard of

The ceremony took place at the minister's residence—the good man being called in from hoeing his cabbages to "jine" the anxious couple The knot was tied, the blessing pronounced, the customary 'salute' clamored, and the fee—two suspicious fifty cent 'shinnies' and a ragged ten cent, paid over, and the minister returned to his cabbages and the bride and groom started for a shady spot under a large tree by the roadside, half a mile off Reaching this, they got out, took off the horses' head stalls, cut them a feed of grass from the roadside, and then seated themselves lovingly under a tree Then the bride drew from her pocket a handkerchief containing bread and cheese, and the groom extracted from the recesses of his coat skirts a quart bottle, then the two proceeded to the first 'square meal' of their wedded life, as easily as if they were seated before the most elaborate and elegant repast that ever followed a marriage ceremony

THE LORD'S PRAYER.—A maiden knelt in the twilight hour, and clasping her hands fervently breathed forth "Our Father who art in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name"

A mother, in deep agony of grief, gazed on her child, sleeping her long last sleep, a smile wreathing her soft lips, and white hands folded across that still and pulseless heart, and kneeling there, the living beside the dead, she prays 'Thy will be done"

As the early beams of the orient gild the sleeping land, a widow with her suffering little ones, chilled by poverty and woe, bows at the throne of grace, and fervently prays Give us this day our daily bread

An aged father, as his loved and loving boy goes forth from his paternal care to brave the cold frowns of life, kneels beside him, in the eve of his departure, and pleads 'Lead him not into temptation, but deliver him from evil, for Thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory, for ever and ever, Amen"

EXHUMATION OF TREASURE.—The Shasta (Cal.) Courier of a late date gives this information

In March, 1856, S D Barstow, of Rhodes & Whitney's Express, was robbed of some $25,000, on Trinity Mountain, by a party of six highwaymen The robbers, expecting close pursuit, secreted a portion of the stolen treasure somewhere near the foot of Trinity Mountain and fled to Sacramento county, where five of them were apprehended, brought back here, tried, convicted and sentenced to ten years imprisonment in the State Penitentiary The term of their imprisonment expired lately, and a few days ago three of the party came up from below and exhumed several days near the scene of the robbery, and then disappeared during the night It is generally supposed that they recovered the hidden treasure which they buried ten years ago

THE PRESENT CONDITION OF SPAIN.—The latest bulletin in relation to the political condition of this unhappy kingdom says 'Transportation continues without intermission. Fernando Po receives daily fresh exiles who are sent there to perish from yellow fever, the prisons are overflowing with ruined persons, who are kept in confinement until out reason being assigned, and if absolutely every one is not arrested if there still remain some inhabitants of Madrid at liberty, the reason is that the prisons are full and that there is no room for other victims But, from time to time, vacancies do occur, which are soon supplied It is, therefore only a matter of patience, and the turn of all will come. The Narvaez Cabinet re-establishes public tranquility and consolidates order

The Daily Oregonian.

FRIDAY MORNING, DEC. 21, 1866.

Disappointed.

Not many months ago there was a plentiful crop of rumors in regard to the intentions of the President. It was expected—at least it was frequently predicted—that he would, on the reassembling of Congress take a course that would disconcert the majority of that body and spoil all their plans. Through him, the South was going to obtain representation. How this was to be accomplished none precisely know; but the President was expected to find a way, and by a sudden stroke, to do the business. It is a noteworthy fact that these predictions have lately entirely ceased. The man the prophets relied upon has failed them. His former encomiasts have ceased to extol his firmness. Evidently they are beginning to see that, after all, he is no more than a common mortal, that his power is limited and that he was not the man to do what they expected of him. Some who were most confident that he was destined to achieve great things, are manifestly disappointed to find that he does not purpose to act, and are therefore upbraiding him for his inconsistency, his hesitancy and his poverty of spirit. Such persons should be considerate and charitable. They should remember that this is not the first time he has failed in a character which his ambition has prompted him to personate. He did not succeed as Moses, and after a very weak effort abandoned that character entirely. What wonder then, that he has failed so signally in the role of Cromwell? Even as a Tribune he has succeeded but indifferently. His late friends should therefore decently bear their disappointment. They should remember that instinct is a great matter, and that he is probably guided by the illustrious example of one who was a coward on instinct. True, he promised to make dreadful havoc with the Radical Congress; but he must be allowed to temper the fulfillment of these promises with a proper discretion. It would be absurd and unreasonable to insist that honor should prick him on to a doubtful and dangerous enterprise. For honor is a mere scutcheon that could be of no use to him after the loss of office and power.

But what ground was there to hope that he would do the great things that were expected of him? What reason was there to suppose that he would or could deal his opponents a sudden and vigorous blow that would paralyze them and give him his rebel followers a complete victory? It was expected that he would push the Southern members into Congress, but he could no more do this than he could thrust out an equal number from the North. He has nothing to do with the composition of Congress. It is not his province to decide whether it is a constitutional body or not. It is not his duty to sit in judgment on its acts and pronounce them constitutional or otherwise. His only duty is to take care that the laws be faithfully executed. Anything less or anything more than the performance of this duty would give just ground for his impeachment. He has no power over Congress, while Congress, in case of any delinquency or wrong doing on his part, has the largest power over him. A contest between these two departments of the Government would therefore be most unequal. President Johnson knows what many of his followers seem to be ignorant of, that in case he should transcend his own province so far as to meddle with the organization of Congress, he would place himself at once at the mercy of that body, and that it would in its own vindication, immediately assert its power of impeachment and degrade him from his office. Knowing all this, he could afford to bluster, but could not venture to act. In pursuing his present quiet course he evinces a commendable discretion—a discretion which, however, would be much more commendable and certainly more creditable, did it not contrast so indecorously with his former gross bravado and unseemly violence.

HOWELL'S PIE.—Every reader will remember the edifying spectacle presented not long ago by the appearance of Henry J. Raymond, "the little villain of the New York Times," before the Republican Congressional caucus at Washington, in a state of deep contrition and abject humility, beseeching not to be kicked out of the party. The following from a late telegram, presents another portion of the same scene, and has not before been published here:

"Lawrence, of Ohio, asked Mr. Raymond whether he adhered to that clause in the Philadelphia address, that rebel States could not ratify the Constitutional Amendment without dishonor.

Mr. Raymond said he adhered to that address, according to his construction of it; he denied that it contained the clause suggested by Mr. Lawrence."

The truth is, the Philadelphia address does contain a clause which has the very meaning ascribed to it by Lawrence. Of course Raymond, abystering politician as he is, was ready with a great many excuses, and was willing to eat any required amount of humble pie to save himself. But he should have been ignominiously expelled from the caucus in spite of his implorations. There is a punishment, however, which he cannot escape. The party will do for him what the caucus did not. He will never again hold a place of trust in the party he undertook to betray. No man who was not instinctively with Congress and against Johnson from the beginning of the latter's apostasy, is fit to be trusted by the Union party. No man who sympathized with that Philadelphia movement has any business in the Union party, except in a subordinate position.

STEVENSON, member of the Territorial Council of Idaho, has introduced an act in that body providing that "all treasurers, collectors, sheriffs, and other public officers who have stolen any money shall be granted a general relief." Such an act is probably necessary for Idaho. When offenders become too numerous for punishment, the easiest resource is an amnesty.

SAVING POSTAGE.—"James, my son, take this letter to the post-office, and pay the postage on it." The boy returned slightly elated, and said, "Father, I saved a lot of men putting letters in a little place, and when no one was looking, I slipped yours in for nothing."

STATE ITEMS.

The name of the Oregon Reporter will be changed on the 5th of January to the Southern Oregon Press. No other changes are promised in the paper.

The Teachers' Association of Douglas county met at Wilbur on the 12th inst. The meeting was an interesting and useful one. The Association adjourned to meet at the same place on the first Saturday in February next.

Two large bucks were lately found in Jackson county with their horns firmly locked together. One of the animals was dead and the other was nearly exhausted by being compelled to drag his vanquished adversary with him wherever he went. The horns are so tightly locked together that they cannot be separated without breaking them.

An unaccountable explosion occurred at Jacksonville a few days ago at the drug store of Savage & Sutton. Mr. Sutton was engaged in filling and cleansing the coal oil lamps of the establishment, as usual, when one that had been just filled and put in its place, exploded with a loud crash, bursting completely into fragments and even demolishing the China smoke cap hanging over the chimney. Had the lamp been lighted the explosion might have been explained more easily; but as it was not, it seems difficult to account for it.

The Sentinel learns from Lieut. Oatman, lately from Fort Klamath, that there was about twenty inches of snow there when he left, and it was still falling rapidly. The boys were in high spirits at the prospect of being relieved from the tedium of of garrison duty, and a speedy return to their homes and usual avocations. Subsequent information induces us to believe that Company "I" will remain at Fort Klamath and not be relieved by the 8th cavalry, as heretofore stated; that company having returned to Vancouver.

The Sentinel learns through the Postmaster at Crescent City that J. B. Wilson was the name of the person recently murdered near that place. He had been missing since November 9th, and when last seen had a gold watch and some money in his possession, which is supposed to be the object for which the crime was perpetrated. The body was found on the 23th ultimo, concealed among some logs near the school house. The name of one of the parties arrested is Michael Hays, formerly a soldier at Camp Lincoln. The other, Wm. Foley, was arrested at Happy Camp, as an accessory after the fact.

A LOOK AT THE SOUTH.

[CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

EVANS' MILLS, N. Y., NOV. 11, 1866.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

Having been absent from my family for the space of more than two months, the most of the time sojourning in the good and penitent old rebel State of Georgia, with now and then a visit to the planting regions of Alabama, and having just returned to my home, I shall undertake to give a brief account of what came under my observation in the South, and how matters generally seem there to a Northern Radical.

AGRICULTURAL PROSPECTS.

The crops are generally light throughout the South, both of cotton and corn. Of the latter not half enough has been produced for home consumption, which must cause much suffering, particularly among the poor whites and decrepid blacks. The blacks generally will not suffer, for there is a scarcity of labor, and when the contracts under which they are now at work expire, it will again be time for planters to commence operations for the next season. So that if a working black is dismissed on Christmas without anything due him, he can again hire out his services immediately and by so doing can obtain means of subsistence. But not so with the poor whites. They have never been accustomed to regular labor, and of course are unable to obtain good wages, even if disposed to go to work.

The scarcity of corn will be a great impediment in the way of planting. To raise the necessary means to secure a year's provisions will be beyond the means of many who would otherwise plant largely. For a plantation of 500 acres it will require at least 1,500 bushels of corn, which on the 1st of the present month was worth $1 60 per bushel in Macon—this high price arising from the fact that it is brought from the North. One-third of a crop of cotton will be as much as the South can produce,—say 1,500,000 bales. Many estimates fall short of the above, for in numerous localities the crop is an entire failure.

POLITICS.

The temper of the South is anything but desirable. The following dialogue will show something of the disposition and feelings of the people: But a few days ago, seated in the car of a morning train from Macon to Albany were many ex-Confederates and a Yankee. The latter being a stranger to the company had little to say, while the others conversed freely. On arriving at Andersonville the train halted for a short time, while most of the passengers stepped off to take a view of the frightful stockade prison which appears so conspicuously to all passers by. "There," says a tall Confederate, "is where many a damned Yankee met his deserts." "Ah!" says the Yankee, "what place is this?" "This place," answered the Confederate, "is Andersonville, where we paid so many damned Yankees." "Ah!" said the other, "this must be in the State of Georgia, then." "Yes," was the reply, "this is Georgia." "Well," observed the Yankee, "I believe this State is not represented in Congress at the present time." "No," rejoined the voluble Confederate, "the damned Yankee Radicals have it all their own way in Congress, and though we have taken the oath in good faith, they persist in not allowing us to be represented, and unless Johnson can succeed with his policy and help us to get our rights, the devil only knows when we will get in again." "Precisely so," said the Yankee, "and let me tell you that you will not be represented in Congress, nor ought you to be, so long as men of your class are allowed to control Southern affairs, and so long as you indulge in expressions like those you have just uttered." The Confederate saw that he was dealing with one of that class of men who had met him in battle, and whom he therefore had some reason to respect, and pushed the conversation no further.

While we see a class of men who are sour and ill-tempered, we find another class who are willing to accept things as they are. Yet there is a want of disposition to see the laws, especially those for protection of the Freedmen, enforced. Though the Georgia has passed laws for the protection of the blacks, it is difficult for a freedman, in many of the best communities, to get justice in the plainest cases.

To give an example: A negro came to the county seat of Lee county and wished to get a warrant for the arrest of a white man who, he alleged, had shot him wilfully, the shot taking effect in his leg. The wound was exhibited and was a severe one. The Judge questioned the negro: "For what did Mr. ——— shoot you?" "I cannot tell," was the reply. "Then I cannot issue the warrant," answered the Judge; and the black was forced to leave without obtaining redress or protection. The case was never investigated.

Yet there seems to be a general good feeling toward Northern men who desire to settle in the South, and who will "leave their consciences behind them." In every part of the South I find considerable numbers of good men who were true to the Union from the beginning. This class are universally Radicals or "Congress men," while all who supported the rebellion are, without an exception, "Conservatives," or Johnson men. The latter class are opposed to the Constitutional amendment, yet they speculate as to whether it would not be best for them to accept it. They are much dejected by the results of the Northern elections. A decided course adopted by Congress and sustained by the people of the North is the only thing that can cure their obstinate disloyalty. If they persist in refusing the amendment it is clear enough that Congress will give them Territorial Governments, and designate who may vote in the election of officers. If I were one of the "reconstructed" I should be in favor of the amendment as the best attainable terms. H. W. E.

LETTER FROM WASHINGTON.

FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 15, 1866.

As Congress is soon to convene, Senators and members are beginning to arrive—with a host of outside politicians and office-seekers—while the various heads of departments are busily engaged, with closed doors, in preparing their annual reports. The reports of the Secretaries of the Treasury and the Interior will be quite voluminous, and contain very important matter. The President's message is looked for with unusual interest, and it is generally conceded that it will deal mildly with political questions that have lately agitated the country and divided political parties, but will present a strong foreign policy. While there has been much said in reference to the course that Congress will pursue towards the President, for political effect, the more considerate and sensible men agree that the best policy for Congress to pursue towards the President, is to treat their differences as political differences to be settled at the ballot box.

Therefore all this talk about impeachment of the President has no real foundation. Nothing could be more disastrous to the country at the present time than such extreme action on the part of Congress; as it would entirely unsettle our finances. Though the season will be a short one, it will put through a large amount of business.

Senators Williams and Nesmith are both on hand, and busily engaged in preparing for the winter's work. The former will take a leading part in the Senate this winter, being at work day and night. If constant and close attention to the duties of his office will enable a Senator to fill with honor such a high position, none will fill it more ably and creditably than Mr. Williams. Notwithstanding his opposition to the policy of the Administration, he is held in high respect by the President as well as the members of his Cabinet, and all business that he brings before them is promptly attended to. In regard to the relations between him and Nesmith, it is proper to state that they are of the most friendly nature, and their action in reference to the interests of Oregon will be united. Nesmith will control the appointments, but he will have none made without consultation with Williams. In other words, they have agreed to differ in politics, but to agree in business, and the Copperheads may content themselves to wait a while longer for bread and butter."

Nesmith has recently obtained the appointment of Col. Steinberger as a Paymaster in the regular army, to fill the place of Winston. Williams obtained the appointment of Daniel Chaplin, as Receiver of the land office at La Grande, and Nesmith obtained the appointment of Saml. M. Black as Register of the land office at the same place. Nesmith also obtained the appointment of O. Humason as Collector of the Port of Astoria. He will be confirmed by the Senate. Some other changes will be made in the Federal offices in Oregon, though not many. There will be no general removals of office holders in that State. Indeed the guillotine has about ceased to operate except in extreme cases—and when such extreme men as Holbrook of Idaho, come here expecting to make a clean sweep of all Radical office holders they get sadly disappointed,—though this last named gentlemen finds abundant consolation in the delicious society of what is known in his country as "ye hurdies," where he spends most of his time. Your readers interested in Idaho matters would do well to understand that Mr. Holbrook has no influence here at all—either with the departments or with Congress—He lacks ability—experience and industry—and overlooks some important points of respectability—besides being of too much importance to accept advice, counsel or assistance from any one. He is almost wholly unknown in and out of Congress.

Col. Farrar is in the city lying dangerously ill of typhoid fever and neuralgia.

DOGBERRY.

THE RIGHT OF SECESSION CONFIRMED.—The Court of Appeals, the highest judicial authority in Virginia, has recently confirmed the validity of the Secession ordinance of 1861, and the Raleigh, (N. C.) Progress, in commenting upon this decision, says that "the same judicial idea is held by nine-tenths, perhaps, of the Southern people." It adds that although it may not be expedient to uphold Secession now, "it ought to be distinctly understood that our section has not yielded the point of right in the dispute." Such declarations as these, emanating from various points of the South, present the strongest of arguments in favor of the Constitutional Amendment.—Boston Journal.

OPPOSITION ON THE COLUMBIA.—If rumor may be believed, there will be a line of opposition steamers from Portland to the Dalles, which will make lively times on the river and reduce fare to such low rates that everybody will have an opportunity to travel, as well as everybody has an opportunity to buy a good suit of clothes now of KOHN & FISHEL, No. 111, Front street—they selling cheaper than can be purchased elsewhere.

"'TIS WELL."—ELLSWORTH & CARDWELL, 69 First street, (Postoffice Block,) would again call attention to the fact, that unless those persons wanting PICTURES call at their GALLERY before January 1st, they will be sure to regret it. The distinguished operator of this establishment leaves the city after NEW YEAR'S DAY, and all those who desire SUN PEARLS, CARTES DE VISITE, AMBROTYPES, etc., in the very first style of the art, should go at once. Negatives taken in all kinds of weather.

PICTURE GALLERY.—W. R. JONES having taken the gallery corner of Front and Morrison streets, Portland, would announce to the public that he is making PHOTOGRAPHS from Locket to Life size, AMBROTYPES, MELAINOTYPES, SUN PEARLS, and CARTE DE VISITE, plain or enameled, in the best style of the art. If you want card pictures with the most beautiful enamel, at lower prices than can be had in the city or State, go to JONES' GALLERY, corner of Front and Morrison. dec17d3m2p

SANTA CLAUS' PROCLAMATION!

I, SANTA CLAUS—known as the Children's good friend, Thus PRESENTS send Greeting that all may attend,
At McCORMICK'S, on FRONT STREET, where I can be found,
Distributing GIFTS to Cash Customers round.
MERRY CHRISTMAS is coming, and HAPPY NEW YEAR,
With its PRESENTS and GIFTS will soon be here,
That Festival time when SANTA CLAUS brings
Handsome BOOKS, pretty TOYS, and other good things,
My HEAD-QUARTERS in Portland are now as of yore,
At McCORMICK'S on FRONT STREET—the FRANKLIN BOOK STORE;
There are BOOKS of all kinds, and plenty of TOYS,
DOLLS for the Girls, and DRUMS for the Boys,
PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS, and BIBLES so nice,
From one dollar to twenty—they vary in price—
GIFT BOOKS and PRESENTS, and DOLLS of all sizes,
Some move their heads and some move their eyes es
There's Wagons with Horses, and Wagons without,
Whips, Whistles and Whirligigs, for turning about.
There's cities in boxes, with trees in each park;
Whole regiments of soldiers, and all Noah's ark,
There's BOOKS of all sizes, and Alphabet Blocks,
And TOYS of all kinds, down to Jack-in-the-box.

Remember the place—

To the Citizens of Oregon!

A. H. FRANCIS,

FOR many years a Merchant in Portland, has opened a Commission House in Victoria, V. I., for the sale of all kinds of flour, grain, bacon, butter, eggs, apples, &c., &c. All those having such articles to dispose of, and are desirous of turning them speedily into cash, at fair prices, will be accommodated by shipping to A. H. F., Victoria, V. I. My well known reputation as a merchant in Portland, and my acquaintances and large trade in Victoria since 1859, will, I venture to say, be sufficient guarantee that every attention to quick and safe sales, and prompt remittances, subject to the order of the consignees, will be strictly adhered to. My business shall be strictly CASH. I would recommend shippers to ship the best quality of articles.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.—Thursday, Dec. 20th, 1866.—The Council met and was called to order by His Honor Mayor Holmes. Present, Messrs. Carter, Carson, Fechheimer, Hallock, Lownsdale, O'Connor, Rosenheim and Lotan. Absent, Mr. McCraken.

The minutes of last meeting were read, corrected and approved.

PETITIONS AND COMMUNICATIONS.

A communication was received from Mrs. Mary A. Kelly, stating that her property had been assessed at high by several thousand dollars, and praying to have the same reduced to $3,000. The communication was accompanied by an affidavit as to value of her property. Referred to the Committee of Ways and Means.

Levi Reed and ten others petitioned for the erection of a lamp post at the south-east corner of Fourth and Salmon streets. Referred to the Committee on Streets and Public Property.

Chief Dodge, Foreman of Columbian Engine Co. No. 2, asked to be furnished a barrel of oil for hose. Referred to Committee on Fire and Water.

REPORTS FROM STANDING COMMITTEES.

The Committee of Ways and Means to whom had been referred the Auditor's estimate of the expense of fitting up and furnishing a committee room, reported an ordinance appropriating the sum of $150 for that purpose. The Committee on Fire and Water, to whom had been referred the communication of the foreman of Willamette Engine Co. No. 1, asking for a new rope and repairs to the same, reported in favor of such repairs, not to cost more than $75. The report was adopted.

The same committee reported the account of W. B. Kapp & Co. for spanners for No. 1, correct. A warrant was ordered for the payment of the bill.

The Committee on Streets and Public Property, to whom had been referred the communication of the Street Commissioner in relation to the widening of D street, reported that they had examined the work and found that the side walks had not been filled under with earth according to the specifications of the contract. The report was ordered filed.

The Committee on Landings and Wharves reported favorably upon the petition of J. B. Price and others for the use of Oak street for constructing a wharf. The report was adopted.

The Chairman of the Committee on River Improvements reported the account of the O. S. N. Co. for the use of their dredger, Lewis dredger, etc. The bill is for 46 days work and amounts to $1,225. A warrant was ordered drawn for the payment of the bill.

REPORTS OF OFFICERS.

The report of the Engineer of the dredger for the week ending Saturday, December 15th, was read and ordered placed on file. It reported good progress made.

CLAIMS AGAINST THE CITY.

The following claims against the city were disposed of: Hunt & Silvers, for lumber for dredger, $14 10. Ordered to Committee on River Improvements.

A. L. Pittock, for advertising, $11 24. Ordered paid.

F. F. Burr, for constructing side and cross walks on A street, $800, and for grading done on B street, $90. Referred to the Committee on Streets and Public Property.

I. J. Northrup & Co., for sundries furnished Street Department, for improvement of Plaza, $11 75. Laid on the table.

PAYMENT OF APPROPRIATIONS.

An ordinance to provide for fitting up and furnishing a committee room, appropriating therefor $150—was read three several times under suspension of the rules, and upon final vote, stood as follows:

YEAS—Carson, Fechheimer, Hallock, Lownsdale, O'Connor, Rosenheim and Lotan—7.

NAYS—None.

An ordinance to provide for supplying deficiencies in the appropriations for the fiscal year A. D. 1866, appropriating $67 and $71 for the 1st and 2d wards.

On motion of Mr. Lownsdale the ordinance was amended by striking out $67 and inserting $71.

The rules were suspended, the ordinance read 3d time and passed by the following vote:

YEAS—Carson, Fechheimer, Hallock, Lownsdale, O'Connor, Rosenheim and Lotan—7.

NAYS—None.

VACANCIES IN COMMITTEES.

The Mayor called the attention of the Council to the vacancies existing in standing committees in consequence of the resignation of Mr. Bennett. There being no objection, the Mayor appointed Mr. Fechheimer to fill the vacancy existing in the general committees.

3D READING OF ORDINANCES.

An ordinance appropriating $114 to pay W. B. Clarke for 57 street lamps in 1865, was read 3d time and passed by the following vote:

YEAS—Carson, Fechheimer, Hallock, Lownsdale, O'Connor, Rosenheim and Lotan—7.

NAYS—None.

On motion of Mr. Fechheimer a warrant was ordered drawn, in favor of Mr. Lownsdale, the bill of R. J. Norton & Co. was taken from the table, and a warrant was ordered drawn for its payment; $10, against the fund for the repair of the Plaza, and the balance against the fund for the repair of streets.

On motion the Council adjourned.

Idaho Legislature.—It is evident from the proceedings in the Idaho Legislature that the House is blessed with several jokingers. When a Chaplain was to be elected, Messrs. Abbott and Stafford voted for Henry Ward Beecher, and Mr. Maurice for Gov. Brownlow. It would be difficult to imagine anything more exquisitely humorous than that.

Successful Imitator.—Since Mr. Hood received its habit of smoking, the lesser light, Mt. Jefferson, prompted by a pardonable jealousy or a laudable ambition, has taken up the same role; and, it is said, got off a performance Wednesday afternoon, which was quite equal to Mt. Hood's best.

To Appear this Morning.—Martha Stoll who lives in one of the "Courts of death," on Second street, was arrested yesterday on complaint of Charles Lee, and will appear this morning for trial on a charge of using indecent language to complainant, in the street.

Error Corrected.—We made one error in the estimated expenses of the city for 1867, in our article of yesterday. The item appeared, "Estimated revenue from fines in the Recorder's Court, $12,000." It should have read, "Estimated revenue from licenses, $12,000."

Sent to Jail.—James Jackson, up yesterday morning for being drunk and lying on the side-walk on Front street, was fined $5 and costs, but having spent his cash in drinking, had not the wherewith to pay and was sent to jail for two days.

From the Dalles.—The Hunt yesterday brought down fifty or sixty passengers from the upper country. The most of them were miners-men, judging from appearances.

Treasure.—Wells, Fargo & Co., received by the Hunt, yesterday, $30,000 of treasure.

The Herald says the "Radicals rejoice in the election of two negroes to the Legislature in Massachusetts." Yes, and they rejoice in the defeat of a Democratic negro who was a candidate for Councilman in Boston. Apropos to this, it may be mentioned that a respectable negro in Salem, when told that the Democratic negro in Boston had been defeated, remarked that "it was good enough for him. Any negro who has no more self-respect than to be a Democratic candidate deserves to be beat every time."

Can't do Justice to the Subject.—The Montgomery (Ala.) Mail, Nov. 8th, can't do justice to the news of a radical victory to the North. It says:

The elections of Tuesday have gone for the Radicals. New York goes Radical by a majority of from five to fifteen thousand. Illinois gives forty thousand majority for the Radicals; and Massachusetts not only gives seventy thousand majority for the Radicals, but elects two niggers to the Legislature. Congress is overwhelmingly against the President, and can do with the South whatever pleases it. We can't do justice to the subject.

The Number.—There are 700 earthquakes recorded in history since the year 285 B. C. Of course, the reader will perceive that this estimate does not include those which have taken place in San Francisco.

Don't fail to call at Harman Bros. before they remove to their new store, as they are selling clothing at reduced rates preparatory to moving.

At Private Sale.—Mr. Cohen having sold at auction the greater part of his stock of jewelry, will dispose of the balance on very favorable terms at private sale, until New Year. He has yet on hand a choice lot of ladies' jewelry, such as finger and ear rings, breast-pins, neck chains, lockets, etc.

Holiday Presents.—Weil Bros. have a large and varied assortment of fine dress goods—such as Moire antiqua silk dresses, French and Irish poplins, etc.—which they are selling off at cost, affording an excellent opportunity for the purchase of Holiday Presents. They also offer, at cost, the choicest stock of custom-made clothing and Gents' furnishing goods.

The Graefenberg Company's Uterine CATHOLICON

does not contain one particle of calomel or mercury, and cases of Female Complaints which require other treatment than the Catholicon are exceedingly rare. It should be used in all cases of Deranged Monthly Periods, Weakness, Irregular Appetite, Nervousness, Headache, Disturbed Sleep, Acid Stomach, Nausea, Indigestion and Pains and Tenderness connected with the Uterine Organs.

THE UTERINE CATHOLICON

Is a most successful remedy for Gravel and all affections of the Kidneys and Bladder, while in the troublesome symptoms attending Pregnancy, the benefits of the Catholicon are most remarkable. It is a perfect restorer to functional and general health from budding womanhood to the turning of life, and those who have used the GRAEFENBERG COMPANY'S UTERINE CATHOLICON find difficulty in expressing their thankfulness for the beneficial effects of this wonderful medicine.

IMPORTANCE OF HAVING DAVIS' PAIN KILLER ALWAYS ON HAND.

Extract from his letter, published in the Baptist Missionary Magazine:

"For the first time since I have been in India, I have been stung by a scorpion. I went out this morning to my exercises, as usual, at early dawn, and having occasion to use an old box, on taking off the cover I put my hand on a scorpion, which immediately resented the insult by thrusting its sting into the palm of my hand. The instantaneous and severe pain which darted through the system is quite incredible; what an awful virulent pain their sting must contain! I flew to my bottle of DAVIS' PAIN KILLER, and found it to be true to its name; after a few moments' relief, I saturated a small piece of sponge, bound it on my hand, and went about by exercises, feeling no more particular inconvenience."

Manufactory Established in June, 1851.

STEAM POWER, NOS. 625 AND 627 FRONT ST.

HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities, CREAM OF TARTAR and SUGAR of all sorts.

The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the Interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, having upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, they should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.

To Let—Inquire Within

Two young damsels and a spinster aunt came in, and after a lengthy inspection of the premises came to a state council in the parlor

I like the house very much said spinster aunt solemnly and with a few alterations, I will engage it for my brother's family

Very good, ma'am said Nahum rubbing his hands and scenting a speedy termination to his trials Name 'em

The door handles must be gilded and I should like the house newly papered in velvet and gold and repainted and the partition between the parlors taken down and replaced by an arch and an extension dining room built on behind and a bay style of range in the kitchen and a lumb water put in and new bronze chandeliers throughout and another furnace in the sub cellar and—

Hold on ma'am—just hold on one minute said Nahum feebly gasping for breath Wouldn't you like the old house carted away and a new one put in its place" I think it would be rather less trouble than to make the trifling alterations you suggest,'

Sir' said the spinster, loftily

' I don't think we can agree, ma'am"

"Very well—very well—come girls'

With prim dignity the lady marshaled her two charges out, muttering something about the extortionate ideas of landlords now a days,'

Nahum, wildly rumpling his iron grey hair with both hands, soliloquized

"Well, if Job had been alive and had a house to let, there never would have been any Book of Job written There goes that everlasting bell again I'll haul it out by the roots of this thing goes on much longer I'll tear down the bell, and put the place up at auction"

Another lady, but quite different from the other—a slender, little, east down lady with a head that dropped like a lily of the valley and a dress of brown silk that had been mended and darned and turned and retrimmed, and over Nahum Briggs, man and bachelor though he was, could see how very shabby it was Yet she was pretty, with big blue eyes and shining brown hair and cheeks tinged with a fair, fleeting color bloomed in vivid carmine. And a golden haired little lassie clung to her dress, as like her tiny lily buds to a blossomed chime of flowerbells

As Nahum Briggs stood looking at her, there came back to him the sunshiny days of youth—a field of blooming clover crimsoned the June light like waves of blood, and a blue-eyed girl leaning over the fence, with her bright hair barred with level sunset gold and he knew that he was standing face to face with Barbara Wylie the girl he had quarreled with years and years ago, and whose blue eyes had kept him an old bachelor all his life long

' This house is to be let, I believe?" she asked timidly with a little quiver in her mouth

"I believe it is, Barbara Wylie"

She looked up, starting with a sudden flush of recognition

And then Barbara turned very pale and began to cry, with the little golden haired girl clinging to her skirts, and washing—

"Mamma, mamma, what's the matter, mamma?'

"Nothing, now,' said Barbara, resolutely brushing away the tears "If you please, Mr Briggs, I will look at the house, I am a widow now, and very poor, and—and I think of keeping a boarding house to earn my daily bread I hope the rent is not very high?"

"We'll talk about the rent afterward," said Nahum, fiercely swallowing down a big lump in his throat that threatened to choke him ' Come here, little girl, kiss me, I used to know your mamma when she wasn't much bigger than you are"

Barbara with her blue eyes still drooping went all over the house without finding a word of fault and Nahum Briggs walked at her side, wondering if it was fifteen years since the June sunshine lay so brightly on the clover field

' I think the house is beautiful," said meek Barbara "Will you rent it to me, Nahum?"

"Well, yes," said Nahum, thoughtfully, I'll let you have my house if you want it, Barbara"

"With the privilege of keeping a few boarders?'

"No, ma'am!"

Barbara stopped and looked wistfully at him "But I don't think you understand how poor I am Mr. Briggs"

"Yes, I do"

"And that I cannot afford to take the house without the privilege of boarders?"

' I'll tell you what Barbara," said Mr Briggs dictatorially, "I'll give you the privilege of keeping just one boarder, and him you have got to keep all your life long, if you once take him '

"I don't think I quite understand you, Nahum Briggs," said Barbara, but she blushed very becomingly, and we are rather inclined to think she told a naughty little fib

"What do you say to me for a boarder, Barbara?" said the old bachelor, taking both the widow's hands in his "Barbara, we were young fools once, but that is no reason why we should be old fools now I like you as well as I ever did, and I'll do my best to be a good husband to you, and a good father to your little girl, if you'll be my wife"

Barbara blushed again, and hesitated, but Nahum was not to be eluded thus.

"Shall I take down the 'To Let,' Barbara?"

"Yes," she murmured almost under her breath

So Nahum went deliberately out and coolly tore down the bill, to the great astonishment and disappointment of a party of rapid house hunters who were just ascending the steps

"And when shall we be married, Barbara?' he demanded

"In the Summer, perhaps," said Mrs. Barbara, shyly

"To-morrow," said Nahum decisively, and to morrow it was

"Upon my word Barbara," said Nahum on the first day of May, as he watched his wife's bloom ing face behind the coffee urn, "you can't think how much jollier it is with you for a house-keeper, than that dog, Mrs Praloy."

Barbara only laughed, and said "he was a dear, good old stupid"

So the probabilities are that neither Mr Nahum Briggs nor his brown stone house will be in the market again as 'To-Let—Inquire Within"

A QUAKERESS IN A HURRY —An amusing matrimonial story is told of the olden time of New England It so fell out that two young people became attached to each other, as young people sometimes do The young woman's father was a wealthy Quaker; the young man's was "poor but respectable" The father could stand no such union, and resolutely opposed it, and the daughter dared not disobey openly She met him by moonlight, while she pretended never to see him, and she pined and wasted in spite of herself She was really in love—a state of sighs and tears which women often prefer result in imagination than reality So the father remained immovable Time passed on, and the rose of Mary's damask cheek passed off. She let not concealment, like a worm in the bud, prey on that damask cheek, however, but when her father asked her why she pined, she always told him The old gentleman was a wise ower, and loved his girl dearly Had it been a widowed mother who had Mary in charge, a woman's pride never would have given way before the importunities of a daughter Men are not, however, so stubborn in such matters, and when the father saw that his daughter's heart was really set on the match he surprised her one day by breaking out ' Mary, rather than mope to death, thou hast better marry as thou choosest, and when thou pleases"

And what did Mary? Wait till the birds of the air had told her swan of the change, or till her father had time to change his mind again! Not a bit of it She clapped her neat, plain bonnet on her head, walked directly into the street and then as directly to the house of her intended as the street could carry her She walked into the house without knocking—for knocking was not fashionable then—and she found the family just sitting down to dinner Some little commotion was exhibited at so unexpected an apparition as an heiress in the widow's cottage but she headed it not John looked up inquiringly She walked to him and took his hand in hers "John" said she, "father says I may have thee" And John got directly up from the dinner table and went to the parson's In just twenty four minutes they were man and wife

A BEAUTIFUL SIMILE —Returning home at night from the funeral the moon was at its full and I felt, as I never had before, how suggestive it was of apt and beautiful resemblances to one who by growth in grace and knowledge is ultimately "made complete in Christ' As the moon, originally dark in herself, shines by a borrowed light passes through various phases of illumination beginning with a narrow crescent, which broadens nightly until the whole disk is luminous with the reflected glories of the hidden sun, so in like manner the Christian—he who was sometime darkness is made light in the Lord — not all at once but by degrees nec rdingas he comes to reflect more the pure splendors of the Sun of Righteousness—waxes to the full and at length appears in the unclouded firmament walking in brightness, has course and conversation in heaven"—Dr A Coles

POLITICS THE BANE OF THE SOUTH —The New Orleans Commercial says

We are paying more attention to politics with worse results, than any other people that ever attempted to handle that unprofitable article and there never was a time when we could let it alone to better advantage We improvemish ourselves and enrich our enemies every time we touch the quarrelsome thing

[Correspondence of the Cincinnati Commercial]

CHICAGO Nov 2d 1866

If this city fails to be as Ben Wade predicts the first city (in making all possible concession) the second city of the United States it will not be for a lack of adequate expectations on the part of the citizens The Chicagoan is an intensified person on the subject of municipal growth He has a grand passion for subtracting last year from this on every conceivable subject and reviewing the remainder with an energetic delight He wants his city to expand rapidly and grow like a giant even though it be a loose jointed and rickety giant like the unfortunate Jackson Twice a week he reckons on his population Sometimes his basis for counting is a new city directory, by which he makes it 240 000 Sometimes the statistician of new buildings which denote 250 000 sometimes the school census indicating 200 416, once in a long while on actual (but not United States census) count which, (in 1865) gave 187, 000 Why police statistics are not employed as a basis is mysterious for they hint at 350 000 and the cases of social unhappiness, frivolity and crime published in the Chicago Times alone would satisfy old Grudgrind that the Garden City has 500, 000 inhabitants The Chicagoan's contempt for other Western cities is unmistakably genuine They thrive he admits, but not like his Chicago

We do not grow we leap," says he "We let out a tuck every day We build 8 000 new houses every year Look at our fourteen miles of docking, our sixty five passenger trains every day, our girdle of sky scraping elevators, our slaughter houses, our opera houses our tunnel or rib our grain and lumber receipts! Cincinnati? Pish! St Louis? Nonsense! Absurd!

Whether or not this fervid and absorbing municipalism has been ordered by Providence the faster to develop the great North west, is a question to be decided only by those sectarians who have official information on the subject. Chicago is growing a shade faster than other cities in the country Surrounded by boundless prairies to till and build railroads on, her commercial possession is rapid Her railway system to day is much more complete than that of Cincinnati, in spite of the fact that in 1850 she had but forty miles Cincinnati has but half (and perhaps not the best half) of her railroad complement. Chicago has mile-tenths of hers, because construction was cheap, when nothing remained to be done but to lay the ties on the level prairies, and fasten down the rails

The present population of Chicago is near 200, 000—a gain of 85 000 in six years. This is certainly a wonderful per cent of increase It has only to be continued until 1900, to give the city a population of over 6,000 000, a figure which no well regulated Chicagoan despairs of attaining in that time But such calculations do not always turn out prosperously Cincinnatians will remember that some of Father Clat's have refused to hold water for several years The knitting of the man is always slower than the impulsions of the youth, and the tide of immigration in this country is a wave over mounting further and further to the West, building wonderful new cities with increasing swiftness, then passing on and leaving them behind to get symmetry and strength by a slower process than that which gave them vitality and stature.

It is claimed that Lake Michigan is at last but an inlet of the Atlantic, and that when all the projected lake ship canals are completed, Chicago will be a grand seaport in the heart of the country—an interior New York, to which even the wholesale merchants of Cincinnati and St Louis must gravitate The fact is probably over looked that if the ship canals are successfully built and lake towns rise to maritime importance, the city of Toledo is better situated than Chicago to do the importing of Ohio, Indiana and various southern States, and three-fourths of Illinois The day, too, may not be far away when the talked of canal in Virginia, connecting the Kanawha River with the James, will give the great heart of the country unbroken water communication with the sea, and a noble harbor at Newport News or Norfolk

Chicago has some disadvantages Its site rises to the dignity of the horrible It is emphatically a place to get rich and leave It is on the Northern frontier of a nation the Southern half of which has been half paralyzed by a devouring war and the no less destructive slavery that preceded it Even should it get ship canals, they will be frozen up from November to April All the capital of the country, and the most extraordinary energy in building railroads and canals, cannot make it a central and commanding metropolis The thrills of growth it has felt for the last two decades will disappear when the fever of developing empire crosses the Mississippi, and goes on building new cities with a fury that will blot even the names of Chicago and Cincinnati from the list of wonderful juveniles.

By statistics just published, it seems that eight thousand new buildings were erected in Chicago during the past year Of these about seven thousand were the cheapest frame affairs Chicago is a wooden city. Go outside of its dozen or twenty splendid blocks of brick and stone, and you find unbroken rows of cheap and flimsy frames, and you will also see sidewalks of laboriously eccentric grade, streets swimming in mud and a general aspect of nastiness and frowsiness indigenous to the poorer quarters of the prairie town The business blocks of Chicago are unquestionably fine, being superior to those of St. Louis and not far behind those of Cincinnati, and its best class of residences, such as those of Michigan avenue, are a credit, but there are proportionately fewer of them than in other cities of the same size Here, as elsewhere in the West, the French roof surmounts all pretentious new buildings either for residences or business purposes

The newspapers of Chicago are among the most enterprising in the country, and next to the Cincinnati Commercial the Chicago Tribune has the largest circulation in the West, its daily issue ranging somewhere between 15,000 and 20 000 The Times though bitterly Copperhead in politics is not surpassed in the city as a newspaper The Republican is the organ whose infancy came near being blighted by the accomplished Dana but it is now in the hands of energetic and experienced journalists, who are making a good paper and do not hesitate to spend money freely without an immediate or palpable return The Evening Journal is a good news and excellent literary paper, contesting with the morning journals the field of special telegraphing, and having a valuable staff of correspondents The Evening Post is a slashing organ, but not very firm on its legs—at least its contemporaries say so much, with an air of meaning it.

That Chicago is not Cincinnati one fact will show The two leading dailies of Cincinnati netted profits last year exceeding $200 000 Of the two journals of Chicago occupying the same political and general field, the Tribune made $160,000, and the Republican lost about the same amount. The Chicago Times made $25 000—how that compares with the Cincinnati Enquirer I do not know The Chicago Evening Journal made $40,000, about the same as the Cincinnati Times—the former being one of the best, and the latter one of the poorest evening papers in the country The Chicago Tribune prints its edition on an eight cylinder press, the Times and the Republican each have a six cylinder, and the Journal a four The Tribune is considering the expediency of stereotyping its editions, a process yet employed alone by the Cincinnati Commercial outside of New York and Philadelphia.

Neither of the Chicago papers have anything very striking in the way of business quarters The new office of the Times is probably the most attractive

I have executed the delicate à fou for a raffle—Crosby's Opera House—and after summoning a judicial impartiality, have striven to decide between its merits and those of Pike's Opera House, which latter, alas! no longer exists But the jury is a tie Crosby's is clean cut, chaste and elegant Pike's was heavy, with rich ornamentation, and much the warmer in its frescoes and mouldings Crosby's is lighted by a great concretion of gas-jets in crystal dome Pike's was girdled and regarded with the subdued luster of nonnumbered lamps The sofas in Crosby's are covered with light green velvet—a decided mistake, the ladies say as it detracts from their toilets by presenting a trying contrast The proscenium arch of Crosby's is very beautiful so was Pike's, with its torch bearing statues The public entrances to Crosby's are but a trifle more commodious than were those of Pike's But the comparison might as well be dropped, for Crosby's is a noble and brilliant reality, while Pike's is but a memory—a thing of beauty whose very ashes have been scattered to the elements

The two leading hotels in Chicago are the best in the West Not as large as those in St Louis, nor sumptuous but better places to feed, and that I take it is the chief end of such institutions and the cardinal virtue of the man who know how to keep a hotel

The lake tunnel is nearly completed About 700 feet only remain to be excavated I visited the shore end and found on the margin of the lake a dingy shed, a rather gloomy hole in the ground with a single flickering lamp at the bottom, a small mound of stiff clay bored from beneath the lake, two small cars for taking down bricks and bringing up mud and one German laborer of limited statistical information The hole on shore is seventy feet deep and about ten feet wide At the depth of seventy feet it makes a right angle and strikes out under the lake two miles where the tunnel orifice is to receive pure water The tunnel is lined with iron or with bricks and is another so difficult or so novel an achievement as the Chicago, as we said have the world to believe One of the projectors under sense as to dig a channel somewhere and make the Chicago River purify itself by running away from the lake instead of running into it For the present there is no talk of extending this design so that the lake shall drain the Atlantic instead of the Atlantic the lake

Mr Francis Lampe of the firm of Stallo & Co lithographers of Indianapolis recently visited Mobile on business and the morning after his arrival found the following flattering notice in the columns of the Tribune He would like to pick up any figure change that the rebels may give him out of the wreck of their fortunes in exchange for lithographing engravings etc He will invest the same in the Italy city of Indianapolis in real estate patriots to fire at the President and Radical voters—for Stallo's outspoken Radicalism is only surpassed by that exquisite modesty of his that induces him to subject patronage at the hands of those he is plotting to destroy —Marat became suitor for the hand of the widowed Maria Antoinette

GOOD PEANUT BUSINESS —The St Louis Democrat of November 13th says an Italian keeper of a fruit stand in that city died recently and remarks As an evidence of the fruitfulness of the business we observe that letters of administration have been taken out on the estate of the deceased apple merchant and the Judge of the Probate Court required the administrator to give bonds in the sum of $100,000 from which fact we infer that the estate is worth at least $50,000 Peanuts must be a staple commodity when a retailer of them retires from the world leaving $50 000 to his heirs

RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR THE PAYMENT OF BOUNTIES, UNDER THE ACT TO EQUALIZE BOUNTIES, APPROVED JULY 28 1866

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON September 15, 1866

1 All applications shall be filed within the period of six months, from the 1st day of October, 1866, and before any payments are made shall be classified by regiments battalions or other separate organizations and no application filed after that period shall be settled until after the former shall have been paid.

2. No application shall be entertained unless accompanied by the original discharge of the soldier and the affidavits required by the fourteenth section of the Act and the further affidavit that he has not received nor is he entitled to receive from the United States under any laws or regulations prior to the Act of July 28 1866 more than $100 bounty for any and all military service rendered by him during the late rebellion, service and above the amount there in claimed

3 All applications for the additional bounty authorized by this Act from surviving soldiers shall be in the form hereinafter prescribed and if evidence of identity shall be the same as is now required and applications from the heirs of deceased soldiers shall be in the form now required by the Treasury Department

4. As soon as the examination of the claims of any regiments or other independent organization shall have been properly acted upon the Paymaster General shall take the necessary steps for their prompt payment

5 A register shall be kept in the Paymaster General's office and also in the office of the Second Auditor of all claims presented under the law in which the claimants will be classified by regiments etc If the claims be allowed the amount of bounty paid to each will be noted and if rejected the cause of rejection will be distinctly stated

6 In the applications for bounty as required by the third of these rules the affidavit shall state each and every period of service rendered by the claimant and also that he never served otherwise than as there stated

7 Organizations irregularly in the service of the United States, or called out for special purposes as State Militia, Home Guards, etc and not included in the general bounty laws, are not included within the meaning of the Act.

8. Soldiers enlisted for three years or during the war, who were discharged by reason of the term ination of the war shall be considered as having served out the period of their enlistment and are entitled to bounty under this Act

9 The minority of heirs, claimants for bounty under this Act, must be proven to have existed at the date of its passage Parents shall receive jointly the bounty to which they may be entitled unless the father has abandoned the support of his family in which case it shall be paid to the mother Non-residence in the United States shall not be a bar to the claim of heirs who would otherwise legally inherit.

10 The provisions of the Act exclude from its benefits the following classes

1 Those who after serving the full period of their enlistment were dishonorably discharged at its expiration

2 Those discharged during enlistment by way of favor or punishment

3 Those discharged on account of disability contracted in the service but not occasioned by wounds received in the line of duty who at all not have previously served two or three years respectively at the time of discharge

4 Those discharged on account of disability existing at the time of their enlistment.

5 The heirs of those who have died since their discharge of wounds received since not contracted in the service and in the line of duty

6 The surviving soldiers and heirs of deceased soldiers who, under previous laws have received or are entitled to receive a bounty of more than $100 from the United States

7 The surviving soldiers, as well as the heirs of deceased soldiers, when such soldiers have bartered sold assigned loaned transferred exchanged or given away their final discharge papers, or any interest in the bounty provided by this or any other Act of Congress

8 The Act of the 28th of July 1866, creates no right of enlistment beyond those vested by the law under which those heirs hereby sought to recover will be the original bounty and debars certain classes brothers and sisters of heirs that were entitled to receive the original bounty from any claim for the additional bounty provided by the Act
